

Cleansing the streets of Morocco for a football tournament

3 million dogs are under threat of losing their lives before the 2030 FIFA World Cup kicks off

Executive Summary

1 Before the announcement in October 2023, that Morocco had been chosen to co-host the FIFA World Cup 2030 with Spain and Portugal, the authorities were brutally killing street dogs at a rate of 300,000 a year.

2 After the announcement, the extermination of the dogs has increased dramatically. A FIFA Congress was held on the 11th December 2024 which ratified the previous October 2023 decision. As a result, the fear is that Morocco will now go ahead with their plan for the mass slaughter of 3 million dogs.

3 A few days before this vote, FIFA published its “Bid Evaluation Report” which outlined its views and findings on Morocco’s suitability to co-host the 2030 football World Cup. The Report states: “Finally, the bid (Morocco) outlined its commitment to the protection of animal rights and has highlighted that since August 2024 the culling of animals is prohibited in the country, and governmental resources are being allocated to expand clinics and support programmes for stray dogs”. The Government of Morocco’s claim that “the culling of animals is prohibited in the country” is nonsense and a fabrication of reality, as are the other claims. The Coalition has concrete proof that the daily slaughter of dogs continues relentlessly and without mercy in the streets of would be host cities for the tournament, as well as in other areas of Morocco.

4 The dogs are poisoned with strychnine which is often injected directly into the bodies of the dogs. Gunmen also cruise urban and rural areas around the clock armed with rifles and pistols. The animals are often badly wounded rather than killed outright and are left to bleed out while thrashing about and screaming in pain. The bodies of some are left where they died to decompose.

5 Footage and witness testimony compiled by the International Animal Coalition – IAWPC shows dogs being hunted down and trapped with medieval clamping devices and without any care whatsoever, are thrown into the backs of trucks to join other terrified animals. \(LINK to FILM\)

6 Dogs that are caught are taken away to be inhumanely killed in what are becoming increasingly known as ‘fake dispensaries or clinics’, where their bodies are either burned in incinerators or dumped in mass graves. Photographs appear to show that not all dogs are dead when dumped.

7 These violent killings and cruel catching practices are frequently carried out in front of children as well as tourists. In September 2023, the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child issued General Comment 26 (in support of Article 19 of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child – which Morocco has ratified) which states: “Children must be protected from all forms of physical and psychological violence and from exposure to violence, such as domestic violence or violence inflicted on animals”.

8 On the 25th January 2024, the European Link Coalition (ELC) held a meeting at FIFA’s request, with the Head of Human Rights. This followed an ELC official child safeguarding concern being raised with FIFA as a consequence of Morocco brutally targeting and killing ‘tagged’ dogs (those that have been sterilised), ahead of a FIFA visit in relation to the World Cup bid and the fact that children were witnessing this violence. At this meeting, the FIFA Human Rights Committee acknowledged the research and evidence presented to them and made a commitment “to include the ELC in the human rights assessment process for the 2030 World Cup Bid Book”.

9 The International Animal Coalition – IAWPC – a group comprised of 20 of the world’s respected animal welfare organisations, believes FIFA shares responsibility for the increased massacres which are being witnessed by children, as it has known for some time about this unacceptable violence. FIFA has been sent weekly dossiers of evidence documenting the ‘cleansing’ of street dogs, but has refused to act to protect the dogs, the image of its flagship tournament and world football.

10 In stark contradiction, FIFA continues to state that it is – “committed to organising the Competition (World Cup 2030) following international sustainable event management standards and practices, safeguarding standards and practices and respecting internationally recognised human rights”.

11 There is now growing public concern within Morocco over the brutal killing and catching of dogs, with people taking to the streets to protest. Many of those involved in the public protests, together with others that speak out or are found to be taking film footage and photographs of the killings and catching in their areas, receive threats and intimidation from the authorities.

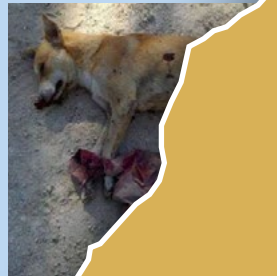

12 The International Animal Coalition – IAWPC is calling on FIFA to use its position to stop the cruel dog killings in Morocco and thus ensure that the rights of the children are protected and that this be included within the Bid Book for the 2030 World Cup. Until this happens, Morocco should be suspended as a co-host. The Coalition is also calling on co-hosts Spain and Portugal and tournament sponsor Qatar Airways to do likewise, otherwise they too will all inevitably be tarnished by association if they fail to do so.

13 Morocco’s King, Mohammed VI, brokered an agreement in 2019 to neuter and vaccinate the country’s estimated 3 million stray dogs. Despite being welcomed internationally, the plan has been ignored by almost all of the country’s authorities.

14 The International Animal Coalition – IAWPC strongly condemns the cruel and unjustified killings and has offered to use its extensive expertise and knowledge to work with the Government to develop and introduce a ‘national comprehensive humane dog management programme’, which includes the mass sterilisation, vaccination and return of the dogs back to the communities from which they came – and belong. This offer has currently been ignored.

'A joyous celebration of our common humanity'

(Morocco, Portugal, and Spain's bid for the FIFA World Cup 2030)

Trapped, poisoned, shot. 'Cleansing the streets' for Morocco's World Cup bid

The International Animal Coalition (IAWPC) is made up of 24 respected international animal welfare and protection organisations from around the world, with extensive knowledge and expertise in these areas.

Africa Network for Animal Welfare, Kenya
Animals Australia
Animals Asia Foundation, Vietnam/China
Animal People, USA
Best Friends, USA
Blue Cross of India
Dogs Trust Worldwide, UK
Federation of Indian Animal Protection Organisations
Foundation Brigitte Bardot, France
Help in Suffering, India
Humane Education Trust, South Africa
In Defense of Animals, USA
International Animal Rescue, UK
Marchig Animal Welfare Trust, UK
Mayhew International, UK
National Council for SPCAs, South Africa
Olsen Animal Trust, UK
OneKind, UK
People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, USA
RSPCA, UK
Soi Dog Foundation, Thailand
Species Unite, USA
WellBeing International, USA
World Animal Protection, UK

Contact: info@iawpc.org | campaigns@iawpc.org
Telephone: +33 (0)555 489579 | +44 (0)7763 699 120
www.iawpc.org

